Foreword

This catalog, in its 4th edition, provides many new sources of free and inexpensive display material for library and classroom bulletin boards. It has been prepared to assist librarians, teachers, student teachers, and educators in obtaining useful resources to support the curriculum. Included are posters, charts, maps, study prints, pictures, and pamphlets. Their value for instructional purposes at all levels is considerable. The subjects covered provide many useful ideas for developing interesting, colorful, curriculum-related displays at very low cost.

Over 1300 items are listed from 392 sources. Most of the items are free to librarians and teachers. The material is arranged alphabetically under 213 subject areas, with description, size, and source given. All sources are excellent for developing vertical files, teacher collections, and curriculum material centers. Understandably, the supply of certain free items may eventually become exhausted and addresses may change. In some cases, different items will be sent as replacements.

It is recommended that only one copy of each item be requested. The person making the request should ask for a specific title rather than make a blanket request for all free materials available. If possible, use library or school letterhead stationery, identifying yourself as a teacher or librarian, and include a return mailing label. Every letter or request for free materials should contain a statement that the SUPPLIER IS TO DISREGARD THE REQUEST IF THE SUPPLY OF FREE MATERIAL IS EXHAUSTED. There is no need for a supplier to waste time and postage on a service which is no longer freely available. NEITHER THE SUPPLIER NOR THE AUTHOR CAN POSSIBLY GUARANTEE THE CONTINUED AVAILABILITY OF EVERY ITEM LISTED.
